Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L., Jr.

INDIA'S WILL TO DEATH"

The behavior of a large section of India's citizenry at this time is extremely repulsive to people who believe in the value of common sense. Their struggle for freedom seems to be made without regard for time and place. Ordinarily such concentration on a worthy object would be appreciated and encouraged. At this time, however, the Indians, totally dependent on British-controlled armies for protection, are seeking to throw off the British rule. The result of such a removal would be to put out a welcome mat for hordes of Jap marauders.

Such an occurence would instantly reduce all Indians to the status of utter slaves. It is qnite impossible for us of the Occident to understand the workings of Oriental mentality as exemplified by this aimless and lunatic activity on the edge of the precipice.

The Indians, no doubt, would have good reason, in peaceful times, to wish the British begone, although they have probably received more good than evil from the Empire. The senseless rioting now taking place in Bombay and other large cities will, of course, not remove English rule, but it may possibly have a crippling effect on the defense of India.

Biting the hand that feeds one is in this case changed to biting the hand that seeks to ward off a vicious foe.

Ghandi, though well-meaning, has apparently had his judgment warped through a life-long absorption in his project of freeing India. The contrast between a benevolent British rule whose trend is for Indian autonomy and the harsh slavery forced upon those whom the Japanese conquer, should appeal even to the most subtle and devious Oriental mind.

The embarrassed position of the British forces them to protect India with one hand and with the other subdue the unwilling Indian public. Since India is one of the bastions of the British system, and a possible gateway to Persia's oil fields, it is essential that it be held willy-nilly. This must be so whether or not the Indians would prefer to commit national suicide by submitting to the rough yoke of Jap war lords.

Seldom in history have we seen a nation in crisis perform with such remarkable idiocy. Perhaps it is impossible to explain, or perhaps an explanation lies in the theory advanced by Sigmund Freud shortly before his recent death.

Freud said that in addition to the "will to life" with which we are all familiar, there existed in human individuals and races, an almost equally powerful "will to death." This, he thought, was one of the basic causes of war.

In the case of the Indians, who bicker and riot among themselves and against the British in the face of a determined enemy, it would seem that a national "will to death" had completely overthrown the normal and more understandable will to survive.

Since it is apparent, that for the moment, at least, the Indians have become utterly blind to a rational outlook, we can only hope that Britain, with her long experience and her strength of character, will be able to handle the situation effectively enough so that it does not cripple the power of her military forces in the Indian area.

ABSENTEE BALLOT DEADLINE

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 17.—(UP)—Secretary of State Paul Peek today reminded all voters who intend to vote by absentee ballot to secure that ballot by August 20 from their county clerk.

COUNCIL BOOSTS PAY OF NEVADA CITY EMPLOYEES

City employees were granted a boost n salaries amounting to approximately $15 per month by the city council at its meeting Thursday night.

The increase will be paid each month in war savings bonds. Those receiving the increases were Chief of Police Max Solaro, Superintendent of Streets Herbert S. Hallett. Police officers James Allen and J. J. Jackson, Water Collector Samuel Hooper, Ernest Young and Nick Sandow. Occasional street employees will not be effected by the increase.

The council set the tax rate for the 1942-43 fiscal year at $1.20 per $100 valuation. The rate is the same as last year and is divided as follows:

Street improvement fund, 57 cts., fire fund, 10 cents, library fund, 15 cents and general fund 38 cents.

FIRE LOSS SMALL IN PAST YEAR

Carl T. Larsen, who retired as fire chief on August 1st, has rendered his annual report on fire loss in Nevada City.

The report shows the department answered 61 calls in Nevada City and six out of town calls during the year. The fire loss was $3,703.50.

The fire at the Martha Dillon residence on Broad Street was the largest fire, the loss being about $2,000. The Miners Foundry fire was next. The loss at the foundry was about $900.

FAG BAG IDEA FEATURED ON AIR

Uncle Sam's forest ranger program on the National Farm and Home hour today featured the Fag bag fire prevention project. These fag bags are little red muslin sacks just large enough to hold the usual smoking materials. These sacks carry a reminder to be careful with fire and have become very popular all over California. Muslin for these sacks may be left at the forest service office in Nevada City and with Miss Edith Scott at the Chamber of Commerce in Grass Valley.

Forest Supervisor Guerdon Ellis of the Tahoe National Forest says any donations of muslin will be welcomed. Such local cooperation will help in furnishing fag bags to issue during the remainder of the summer.

The forest ranger program will be dedicated to the Girl Scouts of America or their nation wide contribution to the fag bag project. Girl Scouts all over the nation have given their time in dying the cloth and making the sacks.

FLYING SCHOOL SOLDIERS MAY HELP HARVEST

CHICO FIELD, Aug. 17.—In an attempt to assist local almond growers now facing a serious labor shortage as harvest time approaches, soldiers at Chico Army Flying Field will be permitted to spend their days off duty working in the harvest, Col. John K. Nissley, commanding officer has announced.

Arrangements have been made through the U. S. Employment Service for enlisted men at the field who desire to do so, to work for harvesters at the regular minimum rate of 60 cents an hour for 9 hours work, when such working does not interfere with the soldiers' normal military duties.

The soldier assistance in the harvest is on a purely voluntary basis, officials stressed. Transportation to and from the field will be provided and the soldiers will be furnished with box lunches.

Soldiers planning to work in the almond harvest are now registering at the field.

Men With Only Wives, Parents, Due For Call

California's supply of unmarried 1-A men will be exhausted by induction of men into the nation's military service within about 60 days, Lt. Col. Kenneth H. Leith, state director of selective services announces.

This means, he said, that other classifications of able bodied men can expect to be called soon, such as those with only a parent or parents dependent upon them or the man with a wife but not children.

In such cases, Colonel Leith pointed out, dependents of men summoned to service probably will receive federal aid for support.

How soon and how deep it may be necessary to dip into the so-called "collateral dependents" groups will depend on the frequence and number of new draft calls, he said, and this type of information now is restricted for military reasons.

Policy of allowing men to volunteer after they have been notified by their draft boards to report for induction has been discontinued.

State selective service headquarters notified draft boards that once an induction notice has been placed in the mails, a registrant no longer is eligible for enlistment in the nation's fighting forces — army, navy, marines, coast guard or air corps.

Major Duncan Powers, in charge of the Army aviation cadet examining board in the chamber of commerce, said the new ruling takes away a special privilige allowed the air corps to accept eligible men without restrictions, as aviation cadets, even if they have been notified to report for induction.

BOYS IN SERVICE NEED LETTERS FROM "HOME FOLKS"

Mrs. O. McCraney, head of the Nevada City division of the National Red Cross which knits sweaters, caps, socks, and makes and fills comfort bags for the boys in service frequently receives expressions of appreciation from the recipients.

Following is one recently received by Mrs. McCraney whihh we are publishing hoping someone might enjoy writing a letter to the boys is the service who might possibly be a bit lonesome.

July 11, 1942.

Dear Mrs. McCraney:

Thanks very much for the nice bag that you fixed up. The boys sure do appreciate those things. Regardless where you go they sure do come in very handy.

It is sure swell to think of the people back home and to know that they are pulling for you and are ready to back you up. I only wish that every one was 100% American. Then everything would be a cinch.

I don't know very much to write and am not permitted to write but very little. I guess that is really for the best. We can all talk too much.

I hope this letter finds you and family OK. I want to thank you again and the American Red Cross for the fine spirit.

If you could find the time and would care to, I would sure like to hear from you.

Best regards,
Pvt. George S. West.

LEDSHAW TAKES TWO LIONS IN BRANDY CITY AREA

District Ranger Delaney of the Tahoe National Forest reports that Mr. Ledshaw, one of our well known California state lion hunters, has been operating in Downieville district recently, and has taken two lions from the Brandy City area. One of the lions was a female, the other a male. Both of the lions were in excellent condition, Mr. Ledshaw reports, and further states that a third is ranging through the area. From previous records we would presume that Ledshaw and his well trained pack of hounds will soon bring this third member to bag.

Perhaps few realize and appreciate the great number of mammal species that range through the Sierra Nevadas on the Tahoe. Other than our deer, bear and lions, we have many interesting and valuable furbearers. There are several species of wildcats, coyotes and foxes as well as lesser members. Some of the lesser furbearing mammals are the weasels, skunks, raccoons, the strange and beautifully marked ringtail cats and the pine marten or American sable.

The Sierra Nevada range is one of the few remaining spots in America where the lordly and much sought after fisher or Pennant's Marten can be found. Even that rarest of American land mamals, the wolverine, may be encountered on the Tahoe.

The Tahoe is also a paradise for the naturalist interested in rodents. There are countless families, genus and species to study. Among them are the rare and so-called mountain beaver.

Sequoia (Redwood) Trees Thrive Well In Nevada City

In the front yard of the R. J. Bennetts home on Broad Street a towering redwood tree attracts much attention. This redwood was planted by Dr. C. L. Muller in 1914 at the outbreak of the first world war.

In the intervening 28 years the tree has grown to a height of 97 feet and its diameter, near the base, is three feet.

Over at Andy Holmes place on Sacramento Street is another redwood which is said to have been planted in 1865, making it 77 years old. It is now 110 feet high and is slightly over six feet in diameter. The orest service back in 1911 planted a number of redwood trees along Rock Creek, east of Lake Vera, and they report that these trees are in a thriving condition.

The sequoia is a native of the Pacific Coast and is found nowhere else in the world. Ten miles east of Michigan Bluff, in an air line, but 40 miles by road around the headwaters of the Middle Fork of the American River, is located a group of seven sequoias at an elevation of 5500 feet. Some of them are estimated to be nearly 2000 years old and how they came to exist here all by themselves is somewhat o a mystery although their fire-resistant bark, which is sometimes over a foot in thickness has pobably protected them from being burned.

The largest sequoia in the state is along the coast highway south of Crescent City. It is 34 feet in diameter and over 350 feet in height.

Plan Inquest In Death Of McCumber

Coroner A. M. Holmes will conduct an inquest this week into the death of Ralph R. Mccumber, 52, Gold Flat resident who died Saturday in the county hospital here from a bullet wound whcih officers stated was inflicted by his father in law, Charles McFarland, 73.

McFarland is being held in the county jail here. A murder charge is expected to be filed against him.

Funeral services or McCumber will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Holmes Funeral Home here. Rev. David Ralston of the Methodist Church will officiate.

McCumber's death came one week after he received the .22 caliber rifle bullet wound in the chest. Sheriff Carl J. Tobiassen said the shot was fired by McFarland after the two men had quarreled and then had fought. The fight occurred while they were driving home from Nevada City. McFarland had objected to the manner in which McCumber was driving the car .McCumber stopped the automobile and then, according to the story told officers, beat his elderly father in law.

When the two reached home McFarland immediately went to his cabin in the rear of the McCumber residence. McCumber remarked to Robert McFarland, son of the accused, that "He's going to shoot me." It was but a short time later the elder McFarland returned with the gun. Robert sought to wrest it from his grasp but the elderly man brandished it at him and ordered him back. He then fired the shot into McCumber's chest, winesses told the authorities.

McCumber was immediately taken to the county hospital but an operation and constant medical attention failed to save him.

McCumber, a native of Indiana, leaves his wife, Lucy McCumber, daughter of the accused man and four daughters, Misses Marian and Sonja McCumber of Nevada City, Mrs. Thomas Mutz and Mrs. Gilmore Stewart of Vallejo. His mother, brothers and a sister also survive.

GRASS VALLEY BEATS OROVILLE

The Grass Valley Miners retained a mathematical chance of winning the Sacramento Valley Baseball League pennant by trouncing the Oroville Olives at Watt Park in Grass Valley yesterday afternoon by a 4 to 1 score.

Chico defeated Marysville 6 to 4 to take the league lead yesterday.

In the Grass Valley-Oroville game the Miners pounced on Pitcher Jack Andrews in the first inning to score three runs. The other run came in the second inning.

The score:	R.	H.	E.
Grass Valley	4	8	1
Oroville	1	4	2

Batteries: Turpin and Stassi; Andrews and Ledford.

War Relief Wishing Well At Skunk Springs

Ranger Beardsley has established a smoking area at Skunk Springs. Part of the improvements is a short section of corrugated iron culvert pipe which he uses as a water rough. On his last visit he found a sign of the times: it proclaimed in feminine writing: "War Relief Wishing Well, Make a Wish—Drop a Penny", and an underlined "Thank You" in kiss-proof lipstick.

On the sandy bottom of the tank there have alheady accumulated pennies, nickels and dimes amounting to about two dollars. Collections will continue to be accepted from forest visitors who stop at the springs to smoke and drink the spring water until this fall when the "wishing well" will be drained and the funds contributed to the nearest USO committee.

Caught in the Riffles

Last winter, we recall, the city council decided the services of a street cleaner were no longer necessary.

"No use sweeping the streets when it's raining," a city official commented. "It's all right to sweep the streets in the summer."

Summer is here and pretty near gone. And the streets look like they have never been cleaned since the last rain done the job. That isn't true, though, because we know the streets were given a thorough cleaning after the Fourth of July celebration.

The complaint on Commercial Street is that the street hasn't been cleaned for weeks and the gutters are littered with dust and debris.

"The Army's OK but send me my bedroom slippers!"

That's what Al Ungaro wrote in a letter home a few days after he began tramping in an army uniform.

Fred Garrison writes from Camp McQuaide, where he is stationed by the army, that he is assisting in the establishing of a camp paper at McQuaide. "Think I will be editor but am not sure yet," Fred writes. "The paper will be distributed to approximately 4,000 weekly."

Congressman Harry Englebright continues to send campaign literature to a local resident who has been dead for several years. Englebright, now touring his district, has Ray Wilde, Jr., of Nevada City acting as his chauffeur. . . An undercurrent of resentment seems to be developing in Nevada City, all because some people manage to get tires and new cars and others, who seem more eligible, have to do without . . . Nevada County mines, except for the Lava Cap, will be idle Wednesday for the annual Mine Workers League picnic, which this year will be held at Memorial Park in Grass Valley. Lava Cap miners have been advised they can take a "shift" to attend the picnic if they desire. . . The last week before election is here and it is expected to result in increased activity by local office candidates. Candidates were handicapped this year because the "Great Register," book containing the names of all registered voters, was not available. The register will probably not be ready until the latter part of this week.

Robert Gates is now employed as a truck driver for the Gray Eagle Mine at Happy Camp. . . Miss Dorothy Roberts and Fred Juliff have set August 29th as their wedding date. . . Les Hubbad has quit a job at the Narrows Dam as watchman and now hopes to become a policeman at McClellan Field near Sacramento. . . Nancy James' old fashioned "Cousin Jenny" pasties, sold each Tuesday at the Rainbow Inn, are certainly becoming popular. During the Fourth of July week 105 of the pasties were made and sold.

Amber Lights Attract Fewer Insects

CLEVELAND, Aug. 17.—As a red light is a warning of danger to humans, so, instinctively, pestiferous night insects slow their approach at a red light. While green is the signal for people to go ahead, blue call the midges to their highest degee of activity. These are two of the conclusions of experimental work carried on during the summers of 1940 and 1941 by the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station in cooperation with the General Electric Company in determining what attracts insects and how to minimize their numbers.

Since people ordinarily use neither red nor blue lamps for illumination, the effects of more usual mediums, white and amber, were studied. If you light your porch with amber light instead of the ordinary inside-frosted white bulb, you will be bothered less as you read the evening paper, for an amber light, of equal candlepower and brightness to a white lamp, will reduce the number of insects attracted approximately 50 per cent.

PRIMARY VOTE UNPREDICABLE

(By John Dunlap)

When half the electorate turns out for an election, it is considered a better than usual average. But every sign points to a dismal showing for the August 25 primary.

Deputy Secretary of State Charles Hagerty, a veteran of three decades and a good judge of election trends, admits he is stumped. He predicted that a 40 per cent turnout of the registered 3,751,290 voters would be pretty good and it might drop down to 30 per cent, as was the case in some eastern states recently.

A 40 per cent return would be approximately 1,500,000 votes, as was contrasted to the 49.8 per cent vote at the 1940 August primary when 1,885,537 persons voted out of the registration of 3,782.702. A 30 per cent vote would drop this figure down to 1,125.000.

The last two primary votes for governer, in 1938 and 1934, respectively, had voting percentages of 59.9 and 59.3, which meant around 2,000,000 cotes. In both cases, however, there was an exciting contest for governor and various other races, whereas this primary is pretty well cut and dried because so many would-be candidates were forced out of the race by machine politics.

In war-time, as no other, citizens should be awake to their responsibilities to take an interest in the ballot. But human nature being what it is, there are too many diversions. Thousands of persons are air raid spotters, or air raid wardens, or enrolled in first aid courses. Most every family now has a son or brother or father in the armed services. War news fills the papers, in fact crowds out all but the hottest political news. Higher taxes haunt the people in the middle and upper brackets.

Families move into defense areas and lose their registration right. Men have left for armed service duty and won't take the trouble to vote by absentee ballot.

There are the more obvious reasons why the vote will be small. Another angle worth considering is the fact with so many men at war and away from home, the women will cast a more important vote than ever before. So the case with the elder citizens, including the more militant members of the pension groups.

All in all, the primary shapes up as one of the most difficult to predict in Californias history.

This is the season of political endorsements. Each candidate seeks to line up an imposing list of names and organizations purportedly backing him. But there is reason to doubt the value of many of these endorsements, mostly by sheer weight of numbers.

The average voter is not overly swayed by what John Jones thinks, particularly when he not acquainted with John Jones. And the fact that the AFL and CIO endorses a candidate is no reason why the rank and file of the union will do likewise. Some union members are paying dues unwillingly and because they must do so to hold a job. Others have personal reasons for voting as they please, not as some union boss says they should.

And the bane of all campaigns are the phoney organizations formed by special interests. This league and that springs up, have fancy letterheads printed, and start beating the drums for their side.

It is true that in recent years, it is physically impossible for any candidate to get around and meet all the people, so news in the newspapers and speeches over the radio have to pick up the slack where personal appearances leave off. Still, most people like to think individually and not by the rubber stamp method.

ADVERTISING. THE ALLY

"What," asked short-sighted persons a few months ago, "can advertising do in war time?" The answer is now evident, and the answer is, "Plenty!"

Even where fewer consumer goods are available, conscientious enterprisers are enlisting the services of advertising both on their own and the nation's behalf. Most advertising today carries far more than a story of bargains. It has become a valued source of information on government retail policies and rationing orders. It has become the super-salesman of war bonds and stamps, thanks to patriotic enteprises who have spent vast sums urging customers to put their dollars into Uncle Sams cash register.

Advertising has become a protector of America's strategic resources. Through newspapers, tire manufacturers have broadcast nationwide appeals for rubber conservation and outlined methods of extending the life of tires. At their own expense, the iron and steel industries have put advertising to work on behalf of the government's scrap metal campaign. The ads of progressive grocers, chain and independent, today present shoppers not only with news of the best bargains, but also healthful low-cost menus, hints as to the best shopping days, as well as a boost for war bonds and stamps.

Advertising, in aiding the enterpriser, and serving the public and the nation's war effort, is proving itself an ally and defender of the country's war-time home front. In a word, it still pays—and in dividends that help maintain a free press, a free enterprise system, and a free America.

FIRE—THE SABOTEUR

Neither sabotage nor enemy action accounted for the more than 2000 forest fires which last year swept through California's forests, laying waste 150,000 acres.

This year increased vigilance and alert safety precautions must be practiced by all visitors and hunters in forest areas.

War has added to the possible hazards of sabotage, has reduced the number of men available for fire fighting services. Fire, ever the most treacherous and devastating enemy of our forest lands, constitutes in war time a direct drain on the nation's war resources; not alone in the destruction of timber stands—and California has 24 million such acres needing protection—but in the accompanying damage it may inflict on such strategic objects as power lines, bridges, and other installations.

Let all tourists, campers and hunters practice safety first!

Well, that's the way the Indians act;
They seem unaware of the deadly

Waits a foe who threatens

India's scrap with Britain could wait,

Yet India's riots for "liberation."
"Liberation's" fine in peace.
But now it doesnt's mean release.
It means the Japs' enormous yoke,

After war's the time to build order

Freedom's price, when men can

Is not India's bloody riot;
In the face of enormous danger,
They seek to make a protector

They would bite the hands that feed

PROPER CARE OF YOUR APPLIANCES WILL SAVE WEAR
Clean your appliances frequently so that they will always be ship-shape for tip-top service. Remember when dirt and dust wear in, your appliances wear out. For example, empty the dust bag of your vacuum cleaner after each sweeping; clean out the crumbs in your toaster; wash the interior of your refrigerator after each defrosting; remove the soap scum and lint from your washer immediately after use and remove the dust film from lamp shades and fixtures. Do these simple little things regularly and your appliances will do more and last longer.
PROPER USE WILL SAVE REPAIR
Unintentional abuse of appliances leads to unnecessary repair or break down. Avoid letting your cleaner chew up nails or coins or hairpins. Be careful not to drop or jar appliances with heating elements. Do not overwork your washer by using too much water or overloading with too many clothes. Cook by accurate time and temperature control. Be careful to keep room temperatures down to the comfort level.

ARMY TRANSPORT PLANES ROLL UP RECORD MILEAGE

U. S. Army Air Forces transport planes have flown a total of 5,000,000 miles during the last five months to speed equipment and personnel to stratgic points in the Australian operational area. Transporting ammunition and equipment to front-line outposts, the planes return to their bases bringing wounded men and plane engines or other equipment in need o repairs. Some of the planes thus used were once in service on the airlines of the United States.

GERTRUDE V. CLARK CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS 2ND DISTRICT

Mrs. Gertrude V. Clark of Sutter Creek, candidate for the Democratic nomination for congress from the second district was a Nevada City visitor last week and outlined her reasons for seeking the seat now held by Harry L. Englebright, a republican of Nevada City.

Mrs. Clark was born in Sutter Creek. She is the wife of Bayliss C. Clark, consulting engineer and formerly an engineer in the Sacramento municipal service. Three generations of Mrs. Clark's family have been actively identified with mining on the Mother Lode and their home there has been occupied by three generations of the family. Her grandfather, E. B. McIntire, located the old Union Mine, once famous producer.

She has been engaged in public service principally in education and child welfare, for twent five years. At one time she was president of the California Congress of Parents and Teachers.

In her statement, Mrs. Clark said:

This is the most important congressional election in the history of this country. Representatives must be chosen whose first interest is to win the war, regardless of political, sectional or special interest, and who will recognize there can be no compromise with fascism, where a democratic solution of the problems we face is the rightful heritage of the American people.

Representatives must be chosen who understand that the United States will have a responsibility in shaping an interdependent world when the war is over, which means that we must share in building a free and stable order, which eventually will include all peoples, regardless o race, religion or political persuasion.

Having frequently traveled over the territory of the second congressional district, for a period of several years, I am aware of its vastness of natural resources. I am also conscious of its store of rich human resources now serving in the army and navy of our country. I know the mothers of sons who will give them gladly if in their giving it means to have a world free from slavery and oppression.

But, to be sure of this, this year, the women have a grave responsibility. Our men at the front have a right to expect their mothers, wives, sisters and sweethearts, at home, to vote for the kind of representatives in Washington who will not sabotage the peace plans, that are to come and make it necessary for another world war to be fought again, by the next generation of young people.

We must not let campaign propaganda blind us to the official records of our public servants. Each one of us s entitled to review the factual evidence found in official recods as to how each one of our representatives voted and be guided by their past records and not by future promises.

I am running only on the Democratic ticket. It seemed inconisstent for me to cross file after circulating an initiative petition for anticross-filing.

As a candidate for a member of congress, I pledge myself to support the president and to represent the people honestly and fearlessly. My experience and devotion to the democratic way of life prompts me to believe that I am prepared and qualified to serve as a represenative of the second congressional district in the congress of the United States.

Mrs. Clark states that she has been endorsed by the California AFL.

Canadians Man Handy Assault Weapon

Passed by Censor

THE Bren gun is a handy weapon, according to the men of Canada's Highland Light Infantry on active service overseas. They are useful from a universal carrier, deadly when set up in a machine gun emplacement, as weapons for assault troops firing from the hip and, finally, as ack-ack protection against low-flying aircraft. Pte. W. A. Smith of Alvinston, Ont., with the gun and Corp. W. C. Thurgood of Hespeler, Ont., are shown setting up ack-ack protection for the assault group as it storms an "enemy" stronghold during field exercises. Volunteer enlistments in Canada in the army, navy and air force are approximately a quarter million, with about 200,000 of these on active service overseas. An observer from the United States recently remarked that the United States will reach the same point on a pro rata population basis when more than two million men are fighting overseas. Output of Bren guns in Canadian munitions plants is nearing 4,500 monthly which, added to production of more than a score other guns of all types, reflects an industrial war effort of considerable magnitude.

Government Listeners Comb Air Waves For Outlaw Broadcasts

Eight spies and saboteurs who were on trial in Washington, D. C., represent but a small fraction of the enemy sympathizers within our borders who would like to transmit military and production secrets to our enemies. Radio offers instant communication overseas, and the operation of outlaw transmitters is a danger to which our government is always alert.

After an outlaw station broadcasting in any language is heard by government listeners who comb the airwaves 24 hours a day, radio locators, using electronic tubes, take up the trail of the offender. Mile by mile, block by block and house by house, they track down the outlaw radio signals until, like pointing fingers, they indicate the exact spot from which the spies are broadcasting. Though outlaw antennas may be hidden in trees, or between the walls or floors of houses, they are detected as easily by these electronic devices as stations in the open.

In time of war, electronc tubes based on early developments of Dr. Irving Langmuir, of General Electric serve in many ways to protect our nation's safety. Dr. Langmuir is the scientist who designed a high-vacuum tube which would handle watts and kilowatts instead of merely fractions of a watt, and which could amplify the impulse of a microphone to tremendous power for radiation from an antenna.

Back From Vacation—

Hobart Childers, employed at Home's Men's Shop, has returned to Nevada City after spending two weeks in Oakland vacationing.

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder about things both great and small—
Vast temples, monuments and bridges,
Strange beasts, inordinate in size
And also microscopic midges.
I wonder at political campaigns
And words some thoughtless people bandy,
But now I wonder with a mind bemused
About that little Hindu, Mr. Gandhi.

I wonder what destiny has in store for Mr. Gandhi. Will future generations provide him with an illuminated niche in the Temple of Fame and acclaim him as a great leader, a true patriot and a benefactor, not only to his own race but to all mankind as well? Or will he be known as a blind leader of the blind who failed signally to appraise the problems of his times and placed obstacles in the pathway which might have led his people to a true and honorable independence. Is he saint or sinner, this strange little person who stands now with the eyes of the entire world focused upon him? Will the martyr's fate be his or will he lose caste so rapidly that ere long his contemporaries will class him with the untouchables?

Whatever our individual opinions of Gandhi and his idealism may be, perhaps we should suspend judgment, remembering, that many other great leaders and religious teachers have advocated the principles of non-resistence, passive submission to circumstances and even civil disobedience. To the modern western world, such practices seem impracticable and unworkable; it would be strange indeed if out of the east should come a demonstration of their efficacy. We cannot find it in our civilized hearts to turn the other cheek at this particular time; but at least let us not condemn Gandhi too readily. In the vernacular, "he may have something."

I wonder if you ever hear anything like this. "No, I didn't register. I never vote. Politics is a rotten game and I won't have anything to do with it." Imagine that! Think of being too pure and innocent to have anything to do with matters which are of vital imortance to one's country!

Now, strangely enough, these people who never vote, who keep themselves unspotted from the game of politics, are the first to voice strident criticism when things go awry at Washington. But why should they give tongue? They are not interested in affairs of state, they do not take time to understand the issues of the day, often they do not even know the name of their local representative and have no information concerning his record.

The game of politics may be a sordid one, but in America every citizen has the right to sit in and play a clean hand. It is not only his privilege, it is his duty, to bring to the game the decency and integrity of his own ideals with the hope that by his own impeccable example he may create a little white spot, even where the old game is as black as he judges it to be.

Vote! Be an American citizen.—A. Merriam Conner.

AUTHOR FINED FOR STARTING FOREST FIRE NEAR TAHOE CITY

Harlan Becker, writer, temporarily residing at Tahoe City, was fined $25 by Justice of the Peace Evelyn Bliss at Tahoe City, for burning rubbish within a six foot cedar tree, previously hollowed and scarred by an old fire. Becker was burning rubbish without a burning permit in the Tahoe National Forest at the Mrs. John Metcalf place two miles south of Tahoe City, reports District Ranger H. I. Snider of Truckee.

Becker in deciding to clean up rubbish thought the hollow cedar was a "confined" place in which to burn, so touched the refuse off. This naturally started the tree burning inside and the suppression crew at Tahoe Public Camp ground was called upon to put out the fire which soon became more than Becker could handle. The crew arrived soon enough to use water carried by the fire truck to put out the fire which was tarting to go up the tree, and it was not necessary to fell the tree. The flames were controlled before spreading to adjoining property.

This is the second fire law violation case forest officers from Truckee have apprehended during the past week, as Max Cantiero, sheepherder, was fined $50 in Judge Bliss' court August 7 for smoking while herding sheep in dry brush and grass on July 24. Cantiero had previously been warned by Ranger Snider not to smoke while herding sheep, as smoking is restricted to camps during the fire season.

Rural Customers To Receive P G & E Bills Once in Two Months

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17.—Most of the rural customers of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company henceforth will pay their bills once every two months instead of monthly as at present.

This was revealed today when the California Railroad Commission gave the company permission to take bimonthly meter readings.

Object of the order is to conserve manpower and materials, particularly tires and automotive equipment. According to E. F. McNaughton, the commission's director of Public Utilities and Roy A. Wehe, its gas and electric engineer, the new plan will save approximately 42,000 automobile miles per month.

Thirty meter readers, urgently needed to fill vacancies elsewhere in the organization will be released, the company pointing out that more than 1100 of its employees have entered military service.

In commenting upon the new plan the commission opinion stated:

"The commission is of the opinion that every effort should be made by all utilities to save, wherever consistent with reasonably sound practice, and certainly it would appear that a saving in so critical an item as rubber, as well as labor, is most advantageous to our country's war effort."

Will Urge University For All In England

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 16.—After seeing the results in America I intend to promote the idea in England of giving everyone a chance at a university education," declared Margery Fry, World War heroine and former principal of Somerville College, Oxord, who has been a recent visitor at the Los Angeles campus of the University of California.

"Enrollment in the British universities is down from 50,000 to about 35,000," Miss Fry declared, basing her figures on Oxford and Cambridge. "There is no apparent shortage of teachers, due to the many young men and women trained for this work."

The reason for the often criticized title "public school," as applying to the expensive private schools of England, Miss Fry said was that nearly all these schools dated back to the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries and the name had become too well established to change easily. These schools were governed by public bodies and were called public schools.

By her work with soldiers and broken families during the last war Miss Fry attained wide recognition. She has been recently appointed to the International Penal and Penitentiary Commissin. She was heard by an audience of instructors and students at Royce Hall as a special event of the summer session.
